At FGCU, we measure success one student at a time.
Each individual matters. Your classes are small and professors know your name.

We call what happens here The FGCU Effect.
What that means for students is that your life will change dramatically. You will become part of a thriving, diverse university, where learning is not a spectator sport. This lush campus will serve as your living laboratory, a place to revel in nature and discover yourself.

Students describe their experiences here as transformative and inspirational.
And, like our mascot, the eagle, you will grow into a confident individual, ready to spread your wings and achieve your dreams.

Your success is our top priority

Take a deeper look
FGCU is known for its abundance of nature. But that’s not all that comes to life here. Download the Zappar app and hold your smartphone over the images marked with the symbol featured here. Be among the first to experience the new augmented reality featuring FGCU flora, fauna and a few surprises.
At the end of the day, the professors just really want you to succeed here in whatever way possible. They will stay after hours for you to keep up and help you get that A.”

Learn where you live.
Sure, you’ll hit the books. But you’ll also hit the trails and, most likely, the water, too. Learning takes place in all sorts of places and ways. Our campus and the surrounding community serve as living laboratories where you can explore and discover.

Explore other cultures.
Broaden your perspective and your understanding of the world with a study-abroad experience. Choose a week or a summer, a semester or full year on your own or on a faculty-led trip. These experiences lead to a greater understanding of your own culture as well and will provide memories that last a lifetime.

Journey into the unknown.
For some students, research is their passion. Others want to travel. Both are possible here. Help catch sharks in the Gulf of Mexico for mercury research. Build a community kiln or a nature trail for a Caribbean village. Teach at-risk children how to read or play musical instruments.

Expand your vision.
Your experiences will help you to understand your impact on the world. Programs like University Colloquium employ interdisciplinary learning to nurture awareness of the natural world. Service-learning connects students to the community beyond campus. Mentor young minds, build houses with Habitat for Humanity, feed the hungry or help in hundreds of other ways.

Be job ready.
Our Career Development staff will help you translate your educational experiences into valuable job skills. They will help with career planning, resume writing, interview and leadership skills, internships and jobs. That preparation pays off.
Get involved and learn valuable life lessons.
Discover something new - about yourself.

Service-learning uncovers strengths you didn’t know you had. When it’s done, you will be a different person from the one who started – one who treasures how the act of giving is also a powerful learning experience.

Sure, classes, labs and studying take up some serious chunks of time. You are, after all, a college student. But you’ll find that the real world offers some fascinating lessons, too.

Service-learning helps you connect with the world beyond campus. Choose an organization that interests you and invest your time and talents to help others.

It might be an animal shelter that finds loving homes for dogs and cats. Or help distribute much-needed food, clothing and hygiene products to the homeless. Or help build houses for people who need them.

The number of service-learning hours FGCU students have contributed since the university opened in 1997. 3M hours

The number of hours of community service FGCU students contributed in 2018-19. 269,000 hours

The number of service-learning hours every freshman and sophomore must complete before graduation.* 80 hours

*Students transferring into degree programs as juniors and seniors complete 40 service hours prior to graduation.
Let the fun begin

Do something.
We don’t sit on the sidelines around here – except, of course, at athletics games and even then, we’re cheering our lungs out with our high-spirited and creatively costumed Dirty Birds fan club. With 15 NCAA Division I athletic teams, we have a lot to cheer about.

Pick a club.
FGCU offers a choice of 250 clubs and organizations in which you will find friends with similar interests. Choose from hockey or cosplay, gender equality or lying in a hammock, Quidditch or cake baking. Greek life thrives too, with 29 fraternities and sororities from which to choose.

Join a movement.
Whether your cause is social justice, growing food sustainably or feeling the wind in your hair as you paddleboard on the campus lake, you are welcome to take part.

Get out and about.
You don’t have to leave campus to take in a lecture, art show, concert, movie or special event. Want more? A multi-screen movie theater is just down the street, along with two shopping malls.

The bottom line:
To have a great college experience, get involved.
